As both a mean reversion trader and a long-term investor, you'll notice that my portfolio includes equities with 10 to 30 times returns. There's no complex science behind it.

A few of my approaches to booking a trade:

1. Reading Management Discussion and

Analysis (MD&A) reports. While many may not have the time to delve into these reports, I've found that dedicating some time to them can help identify trends before a bubble forms.

2. Spotting insider buying and spending time analyzing whether a bubble is about to form in a sector or equity.
3. Lastly, reviewing lobbying activities in lobby registries and then crunching the numbers.

As of October 18, 2024, my equity holdings and watchlist include natural resources, utilities, digital assets, and more, with allocations across assets in Brazil, Canada, the United States, and other regions.
